CITIZENS' VOLUNTEER MONITORING PROGRAM

On October 15 and 16, a workshop was held at Jennings Environmental Education Center in an effort to work with the interested public on water monitoring techniques and passive options for treatment of abandoned mine drainage. About fifty(!) people attended the workshop. This was one of several workshops held throughout the state.

Thank you to the Canaan Valley Institute, PA DEP, Jennings Environmental Education Center, Western Pennsylvania Coalition for Abandoned Mine Reclamation, Slippery Rock Watershed Coalition, the Biology Department at Slippery Rock University, and all the citizens who participated. Thank you to Diane Wilson, Janie French Margaret Dunn, Mark Killar, Will Taylor, Jo Ann Albert, Tim Danehy, and Dean Denicola for all their help in presenting. The enthusiasm was appreciated!

Thank you to the Pittsburgh Tribune Review for an excellent article. This was printed on Saturday November 13, 1999 page 2, by Larry Sanata.
